STRIKE SETTLEMENT BELIEVED TO BE
IN SIGHT IS INDIANAPOLIS REPORTSECRETARY OF LABOR WILSON URGES AC-CEPTANCE OF PROPOSAL BY MINERS
IN TELEGRAM TO PRESIDENT LEWIS

INVESTIGATORS REPORT FEB. 1ST

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 9.—The end of the coal strike was believed in sight today as the executive heads of the United Mine Workers of America gathered here to consider President Wilson's proposal for settlement of the controversy. Only the high officials were apprised of the terms of the proposal. The miners took the position that what was good enough for Lewis and Green is good enough for us.

The terms of the proposal will be kept secret at least until the meeting has opened at 2 p. m. today. However, it is known that the proposal provides that the miners return to work at once, and for an increase in wages of 14 per cent. and the appointment of a commission to investigate the situation.

The commission it was reported here also will go into the operators' side and will recommend readjustment of prices.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Secretary of Labor Wilson today telegraphed President John Lewis and other officials of the United Mine Workers urging them to accept President Wilson's proposal for a settlement of the coal strike. The proposal Wilson declared found a way out with honor for the government and for the men.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 9.—Hearings on charges of contempt of court against leaders of the United Mine Workers of America were continued today until next Thursday. In view of the possible early ending of the coal strike the federal grand jury investigating the information charging violation of the Lever act by mine operators and mine workers was continued until December 17.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 8.—Efforts to bring to an end the national coal strike of bituminous coal miners, through a compromise agreement centered in a series of conferences, held here tonight with federal officials on 1 hand and miners officials on the other. In the offices of Federal Judge A. E. Anderson a conference was held between Attorney General Palmer, his assistant, Charles B. Ames and H. S. Mitchell and District Attorney Plack. From three o'clock when they went into conference behind guarded doors, until late tonight not one inkling of what transpired was forthcoming. The attorney general said there would be no settlement as to the government's program with the quashing of contempt citations against the miners leaders. This indicated the government's program will not be disclosed until the defendants appear in court.

At the office of the U. M. W. of A., President John L. Lewis, and Secretary William Greene conferred with a dozen leaders from various parts of the country. To none did they unfold the nature of the agreement, it was announced.

Meanwhile the scores of early arrivals who are to hear the text of the agreement at a general meeting tomorrow, let it be known emphatically that any proposition not more liberal than Dr. Garfield puts it, would run against stiff opposition on the floor of the meeting tomorrow.

From a source close to both sides, it was intimated that the plan of settlement which goes before the meeting tomorrow will be virtually as follows:

1—Acceptance of the 14 per cent. increase as a temporary agreement, while the court of investigation goes into the entire situation and returns its findings before February 1.

2—Any final decision in advance of the prescribed 14 per cent. to be retroactive to date the mines reopened.

3—Quashing of all court proceedings against the U. M. W. of A. officials at once.

4—Guaranteeing of a thirty hour week of a minimum of hours.

ALLEGED BILLY DANSEY MURDERERS IN CUSTODY

HAMMONTON, N. J., Dec. 9.—Little Billy Dansey's dog Jack may prove the central figure in the remaining chapter of the story of the disappearance and death of the little boy in connection with which two of his neighbors are under arrest. Jack, according to persons familiar with the case, was disliked by persons who worked on the White farm adjoining the Dansey home. The boy and dog were seen playing among the daffodils on the farm a few hours before Billy disappeared. Neighbors said that Jack had been shot. A bullet wound was found in his leg. The theory has been advanced that some one shooting at the dog might have hit the boy with fatal results. So quiet was the arrest and preliminary arraignment of Carl S. White and Mrs. Edith Jones by county officials late yesterday that the fact was not generally known until today.

MORE SUGAR COMING BUT PRICES RAISE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Although fifty million pounds of beet sugar is announced as having arrived here there will be no reduction in the price to the consumer. The supply will serve only to relieve the shortage which has been so critical here for several months. This supply of sugar according to E. H. Costello, chairman of the sugar equalization board will be augmented by 62,725,000 pounds by the next crop. The price of sugar to the consumer in 1920 will reach over 15c a pound, A. T. Williams, of the committee of wholesale grocers of the fair price committee announced. The federal food administration also said that price fixing would be continued even after the sugar equalization board goes out of existence December 31.

EAST END BAKERY
OPENED YESTERDAY

W. E. Mather, the energetic proprietor of the City Bakery, has removed his establishment from the Leitzinger block on Third street, to his own newly completed and most up-to-date building, adjoining his residence on Daisy street.

The move was made yesterday, and the first batch of bread was baked in the new oven last evening. It was of most excellent quality at that, and we know whereof we speak, because a hungry Progress representative was present and watched Mr. Mather, Baker Ted Hastings and helper Walter Rush relieve the oven of its first load of luscious loaves, and were given a couple to take home and sample.

The Mather Bakery is housed in a handsome brick building in the rear of two store rooms, which front on Daisy street, between Seventh and Eighth streets. The bake shop proper is 36 x 72 feet in size, and it was designed and built especially for the purpose for which it is being utilized. The room is well lighted and ventilated, and is equipped with all the latest and most improved bake shop machinery. A 400-loaf Hubbard oven is installed, and with the labor-saving automatic equipment, makes it possible to turn out 400 loaves of the finest of bread every hour.

In addition to the bread mixing and moulding machinery, a full complement of cake and doughnut machines are also at hand, which, with its cleanliness and most excellent sanitary arrangements, make the Mather Bakery second to none in this section.

Mr. Mather has conducted the City Bakery for the past ten or twelve years, and by his courteous, square business dealing at all times, has built up a fine trade in this section. He is now better equipped than ever to supply the wants of his growing trade.

His store or salesroom, which is not quite ready yet, will be opened in a few days.

IN HARD LUCK SURE

Eugene Viard, a former down-river boy, and a party of friends from the northern part of the state, have the champion hard luck story of the present deer season. They were hunting back in the Mosquito Creek Country somewhere, and on Tuesday last shot a small buck. The little fellow sported two spikes, neither of which were overly prominent. The hunters hung the deer up at their camp, and a day or two later Game Protector Daie happened along. The short horns attracted his attention, and pulling out his rule, he measured the spikes. One was found to be two and one fourth inches in length, while the other lacked one quarter of an inch of the required two inches above the hair, and the hunters were called upon to cough up the hundred dollar fine, which they did, although they protested vigorously.

Your Community
It's A Great Place

A manufacturer from Clearfield recently went to New York City to place his product in the hands of a selling agent. On his list of prospective agents was a refined old gentleman, who, upon hearing that his caller was from Clearfield, invited him to sit down. He informed our Clearfield friend that his line was entirely different and he could not take it on, but that he had heard so much about Clearfield that he wanted to know what a coal mine was like. New York may be a busy place, but an enjoyable two hours was spent and the name "Clearfield" was the only introduction, for isn't it a great place?

'TIL CHRISTMASLOCAL BOY TO GET FRENCH CROSS

Mayor Chase was recently advised by letter from Lieutenant R. I. Avery, in charge of the Marine Corps Recruiting Agency at Pittsburgh, that Lieutenant Avery had been allocated to present the French Croix de Guerre to Sergeant John P. Barry, of the famous Fifth Marines, who served throughout the war "over there," and who is in line for the American Distinguished Service Cross for exceptional bravery in action.

Lieutenant Avery asked the co-operation of Mayor Chase in arranging for a proper celebration of the occasion, and in carrying out the wishes of the Marine Corps' officer, the Mayor consulted Colonel Fred B. Kerr, commander of John Shute Post, American Legion, and as a result of that conference, a committee composed of Edward T. Kelly, Esq., representing the American Legion, Chief of Police Eddie and J. D. Connelly, was appointed to arrange a program of exercises for the occasion of the presentation, and just as soon as this committee can get together the necessary announcements will be made and the date of the presentation announced.

Sergeant Barry was one of the first American boys to go over seas, and remained to the finish. He made an enviable record in the Marine Corps, and his friends and fellow Clearfielders will be pleased to assist in the bestowal of this honor upon him.

WILL OCCUPY MURRAY BUILDING

The County National Bank has arranged to occupy the Murray Building on Second street, formerly used by the Penn Public Service Company, during the time of the remodeling of the County National Building. The bank will be moved at the end of this month, and business will be conducted at the Murray Building after January 1st, 1920.

Madness of the Moon.

So far as we can gather, there is no foundation for the old belief that the moon affects the mind and brings about madness in some people. The idea may have originated from the word "lunatic," which is derived from "luna" the moon.

GERMANS MUST SIGN ON DOTTED LINE

PARIS, Dec. 9.—The Allies today presented a united front to Germany in their demands for acceptance of the protocol to the peace treaty. Both the British and Italian delegates received notification from their governments that they stand ready to force the Teutons to sign the protocol. Meantime there was a feeling both in Paris and London that Germany will sign. The Germans it was believed are convinced that the failure of the United States to ratify the treaty has not put the Allies in a position where they are forced in any measure to back down on their original terms.

MEXICAN REPLY TO JENKINS NOTE AWAITED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The State Department expected to receive today the Mexican reply to the last American note calling for the release from the Pueblo jail of Consular Agent Wm. O. Jenkins. Officials believed that the trend of the reply will be that since Jenkins has been released under bail there is no further cause for friction between the two governments. The United States does not agree with this view, they say.

NOVEMBER ELECTION
COST PRETTY SUM

The last November election cost the different candidates for county offices and their party organizations almost $5,000, if the truth has all been told so far as filed, while the accounts of several of the candidates are not in sight. According to these statements of election expenses filed in Prothonotary Moore's office, this amount was expended as follows:

The Republican county organization through Chairman H. H. Sweeney, expended a total of $2,615, all of which was contributed by the candidates, fellows already at the "pic counter," and dyed-in-the-wool partisans willing to part with a shekel or two, in order that the "common enemy" might be confounded.

Democratic Treasurer J. Fred Weaver received $748.53 and expended $713.50. Of this amount Deputy Revenue Collector Gardner let go of $15, and he was the only fellow with his nose in the public feed bag to loosen. A few of the unwashed and untutored high privates in the party, aside from the candidates, also came across.

Prothonotary Candidate George W. Ralston expended $883.35, while his unsuccessful Democratic opponent, John Scollins, spent $1047.71.

For Register and Recorder Chester A. Millburg, Democrat, spent less than $50.

For County Treasurer Amos Rumbarger paid out $1,433.35.

Of the County Commissioner candidates, M. L. Farrell, Democrat, heads the list with an expenditure of $582.88, while his colleague C. B. Goodlander, touched low water mark with $78.65. Jesse E. Dale, who led the Republican ticket, was "maced" for $339.50, while T. R. Weimer took second money at a cost of $260.

BIG EAGLE BROUGHT DOWN

The huge bald eagle which recently followed one of the mail airplanes over Clearfield in an evident effort to do battle with man's winged monster, was shot one day last week near Jersey Shore, by a hunter named Rhinehart. The huge bird measured six feet, nine inches from tip to tip, and had pursued one of the mail planes to Lock Haven, and was back tracking over the route to his mountain home, when he came in range of Rhinehart's gun down along Tomb's Run, in Clinton county.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY THANK-FUL

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Clearfield Hospital held their monthly meeting at the Nurses' Home on Wednesday, December 3rd. President Mrs. James Kerr, presided.

The report of the treasurer showed the auxiliary to be in very good shape financially, and also noted many handsome contributions made during the Thanksgiving period, for which the members extend their thanks.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION COMMISSION
ORGANIZED AT HARRISBURG TODAY

HARRISBURG, Dec. 9.—The House Chamber at the State Capitol here today assumed an atmosphere similar to that of a legislative body, meet in regular session. Twenty-five Pennsylvanians of both the Republican and Democratic party were gathered for the first meeting of the Constitutional Revision commission, created by an act of the last legislature to make amendments and revisions to the present state constitution.

Included in the body of commissioners, appointed by Governor Sprout, were representatives of the bar, farmers, newspaper men, foresters, constitutional experts and college professors.

Attorney General William I. Schaffer, Chester, is chairman of the commission and was to open the meeting in the absence of Governor Sprout. United States Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, both Pennsylvanians were expected to address the assemblage today. Attorney General Palmer formerly practiced law in Stroudsburg, Pa., and is ex-president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association.

Today's meeting was expected to develop only the appointment of a secretary, council of the commission, and committee organization. William Draper Lewis, Philadelphia attorney and former Dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, was a likely appointee as one of the commissions counsel. He has assisted in the drafting of many laws and humanitarian legislation.

While the commission was called to the purpose of making revisions and amendments to the present constitution, which has been standing with only minor changes since 1873, it was generally believed on "Capitol Hill" that a recommendation would be submitted to the next legislature in 1921 that an entire new constitution be drafted. The recommendations of the Revision commission would be sent the next legislature which would then order a constitutional convention for the purpose of drafting a new constitution. This convention would report to the 1923 legislature and the electorate would then vote on the ratification of the new constitution at the November elections of 1923.

Sixty thousand dollars was appropriated by the 1919 legislature to defray all expenses of the commission. The members will receive no compensation, but their expenses will be paid.

The constitution of 1792 (present) is the fourth under which Pennsylvania has been governed. The first with the document of 1776, adopted at Philadelphia under the the presidency of Franklin. The second was adopted in Philadelphia in 1790 immediately following the adoption of the Federal Constitution and was preceded over by Mifflin. The third was adopted in Philadelphia in 1838, the convention moving from Philadelphia to Lancaster, where it met in 1837 with John Sergeant as president. The fourth and present was adopted in Philadelphia in 1873—the convention moved from Harrisburg to Philadelphia.

Ninety-six members composed the first convention, 60 the second, 130 the third and 133 the fourth.

The present constitution was ratified by a vote of 250,744 to 200,000.

Members of the commission, their residence and occupation are:

William I. Schaffer, attorney general of Pennsylvania; Chester; Republican. A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general of the United States; Stroudsburg; Democrat. Hampton L. Carson, former attorney general of Pennsylvania, and president of the American Bar Association, Philadelphia; Republican.

William B. Wilson, secretary of labor of the United States; Philadelphia; Democrat.

Edgar F. Smith, professor of law, University of Pennsylvania; Philadelphia; Republican.

Edward J. Fox, former justice of the peace, Philadelphia; Democrat.

Thomas Dewitt Caylor, attorney, Philadelphia; Democrat.

George E. Allen, former justice of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, attorney, Philadelphia; Republican.

William Perrine, journalist, writer and writer on history and the constitution, Philadelphia; Republican.

John P. Kelly, former justice of the Lackawanna County, Scranton; Democrat.

Isaac Sharpless, former justice of the Haverford College, former writer on Pennsylvania laws, Independence; Republican.

Mayor Rumbarger, former justice of the Philadelphia court, Philadelphia; Republican.

John S. Fisher, State banking commissioner, Harrisburg; Republican.

WORLD'S "WHITE RIBBON" CONVENTION
TO BE HELD IN LONDON NEXT APRIL

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The movement for the prohibition of the liquor traffic in the United Kingdom, which has become a subject of serious discussion since the adoption of nation-wide prohibition in the United States, is expected to receive additional impetus from the great convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which is to assemble in this city in April, at the invitation of the National British Woman's Temperance Association. Already the advocates and opponents of the movement are looking forward to the convention with the keenest interest.

It is now a quarter of a century since the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union held its last convention in the British metropolis. It is an imposing organization, consisting of the W. C. T. U.'s of the United States, Canada, Australia and half a hundred other countries, but in its origin it was local to Ohio and Illinois, and was composed of a number of clubs similar to other temperance organizations of the period, with the important exception of the fact that membership was restricted exclusively to women.

Another feature which gave the new organization a character distinctly its own, was its catholicity. It was constituted on a non-partisan basis, drawing its recruits from every church, class, and race.

The coming convention will be attended not only by delegates from the United States, Canada, and every part of the British Empire, including India, Burma, Ceylon, Malabar, Gibraltar, and the Straits Settlements, but delegates will attend from Japan, China, Siam, Egypt and several of the Latin-American countries—from which it will be seen that the white ribbon of the union now girdles the world.

During the war the conventions of the world organization, which customarily are held every three years, were suspended, and six years have elapsed since the last convention met in Brooklyn. During these years, however, the cause of temperance has made unparalleled progress, and prohibition the world over has received an irresistible impetus from the action of the United States and Canada in adopting national prohibition.

Although the liquor traffic still claims to be securely entrenched in Great Britain, signs are not wanting that its foundations are beginning to be sapped, and it is believed that the women's temperance convention next spring will do much to rouse public interest in the subject of prohibition. At the present time the National British Women's Temperance Association, besides actively working for the extension of local option to England and Wales, is devoting its energies particularly to preparing for the world convention in April.

The preparations for the convention are in the hands of a committee headed by Miss Agnes E. Black, who is well known on both sides of the Atlantic as a temperance reformer, and who, for twenty five years, has been one of the secretaries of the World's W. C. T. U. This committee is working to make the gathering as representative of the union throughout the world and as complete a success as possible.

The convention will be formally opened on Sunday, April 13th, when it is proposed to have a special total abstinence sermon or address delivered in every church and hall in London, and throughout the provinces, and a temperance sermon, it is hoped, will be preached from the pulpit of every Christian denomination throughout the world.

During the convention, the Lord Mayor of London will entertain the delegates at a special reception given in their honor at the Guildhall.

Smart Clothes

True economy does not consist of buying articles because they are low-priced. Frequently, the purchase of a low-priced suit may prove to be the greatest extravagance. The measure of economy is to be found in the measure of value.

There are no clothes made where the measure of value is greater than in STEIN-BLOCH SMART CLOTHES—where you will find such a complete and satisfactory combination of tailoring, style, high quality of materials, and all the other factors that enter into genuine worth.

We know, from our long experience in the clothing business, that we could offer you no better clothes at any price. No better clothes are made. And it is a source of great satisfaction to us to be able to offer such clothes at prices you would ordinarily expect to pay for suits of inferior quality.

Enjoy Cold Days in a Maxwell

JUMP into a Maxwell, bundle up, and in a second or two you're off.

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

No stone cold engine, no getting out to crank.

A few revolutions of the engine and it is running with midsummer action.

You get over ground quickly, get to your destination faster than in a bigger car.

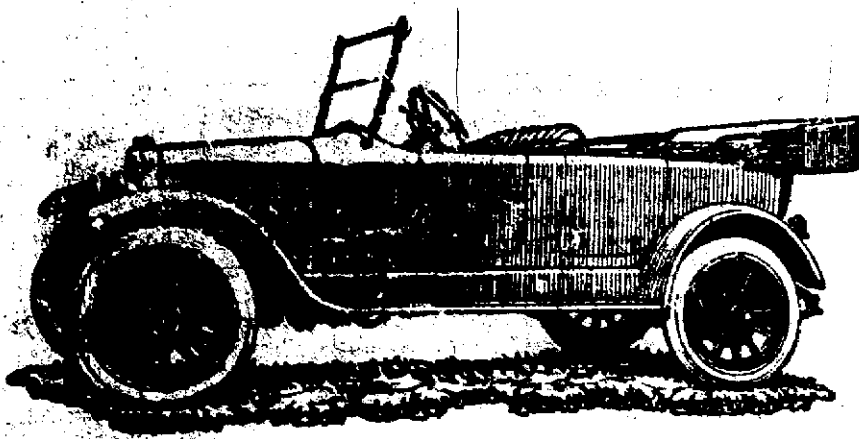

This cold weather efficiency in a Maxwell is traceable to the Hot Spot and Ram's-horn, which warm up, "break up" gas into a fine vapor.

The moment this reaches the cylinders it is converted into full power and you avoid the troublesome experience of "trying to get a car warmed up on a cold day."

This high efficiency and the fine quality of steels used in its construction have made for Maxwell friends by the thousands—to date more than 300,000 of them. 100,000 Maxwells are being built this year; which will supply but 60% of the demand.

GRAND JURY'S REPORT

To the Honorable Singleton Bell, P. J. The Grand Inquest inquiring in and for Clearfield county, December Sessions, 1919, do respectfully submit the following report:

We have acted upon 35 bills of indictment, of which we returned 32 true bills, two not true bills and one withdrawn.

We recommend to the County Commissioners to build a new concrete bridge at Madera, in Bigler township, to take the place of a wooden bridge across Muddy Run, said County Commissioners to pay fifty per cent. of the cost of the bridge.

We have inspected the public buildings and find them in good condition except the jail, and we find that the following repairs should be made in the Woman's ward—plaster repaired, walls frescoed and furnished; in juvenile ward, plaster repaired, papered and furnished; the bath room, iron outside door to replace wooden door and lower corridor, window in rear to admit light.

As to the County Home, we recommend fire escapes to be placed as soon as possible.

As to the Court House, room known as county room, plaster to be repaired, walls and ceiling to be papered.

We also return our thanks to the Honorable Court, District Attorney and officers of the court, the County Home Stewart and Matron and our Tipstaff for their courtesies during our deliberations.

At noon of December 21, the shortest and darkest day of the year, we could easily detect a faint glow of light in the south. The true darkness of night is a result of the complete disappearance of all traces of twilight, which occurs when the sun reaches a point of 18 degrees below the horizon. THRIFT A SYNONYM
FOR LAW AND ORDER

Cardinal Mercier Recognizes Importance of Government Savings Plan.

The efforts of the United States Treasury to promote popular saving and wise investment have gained an additional strong endorsement from Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, who won the hearts of all Americans during his recent visit here. The Patriarch of the little land of thrift and courage wrote to the Savings Division of the Third Federal District as follows:

"I fully appreciate the importance of the effort which the United States government is making, with a view to establishing in the minds of the people of your country the necessity of thrift. I am the more able to express an opinion on the subject, that my own people in Belgium are among the most thrifty in the world, and I think I may say this without boasting. There is no doubt that the savings of the Belgian Workmen enabled them to months of the worst and most difficult time over the world at the beginning of the war. The magnificent generosity of the American people was able to afford practical relief everywhere. There is no doubt, also, that habits of thrift teach men the value of money and serve to familiarize them with a sense of responsibility, and this in turn makes for law and order."

PENNSYLVANIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO TEACH THRIFT

Education Congress Urges Its Permanency in the Curriculum.

To make the teaching of Thrift and Economy compulsory and permanent in all elementary, secondary and higher schools was the consensus of opinion of the prominent educators, who met at Harrisburg, Pa., to discuss the current problems in connection with public instruction.

"The development of the habits of thrift is a psychological problem in the schools," said Dr. Benjamin Andrews, of Washington, D. C. "It must be worked out in theory and in practice with unflinching firmness by the preparation of persons to budget and by the common-sense application of the principles of gain and loss. Then every school should have a special period to developing the habits of earning and saving. Every school should have a bank in which the rudimentary ideas of investment should be practically worked out."

To this end every possible means was advocated. Miss Edna N. White, of the State University of Ohio, thoroughly emphasized the fact that in our schoolroom ample time should be given over to sound, fundamental object lessons in thrift, in the care of school supplies, conservation of clothing, expenditure of allowances and to be first principle of wise saving and safe investment.

At the close of the discussion the following resolution was presented by W. Harrison Walker, of Bellefonte, Pa., and was unanimously adopted: Whereas, The Federal Government, through the United States Treasury Department, has requested the sale of the country to continue the sale of Government Savings Stamps, and to develop a permanent system of thrift education, and

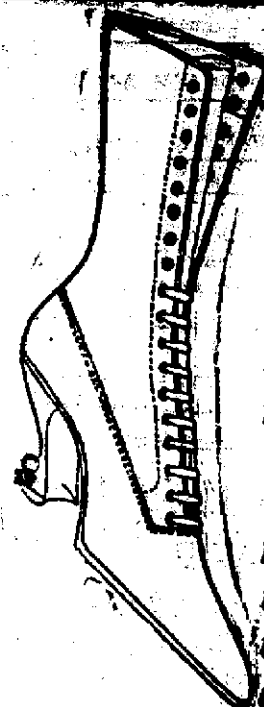

Whereas, The National Education Association in a resolution of July 5, 1919, urged that "all elementary schools, secondary schools and higher schools make compulsory the teaching of thrift and savings, and thereby give it a place of permanence in the curriculum," and

Whereas, Doctor Thomas E. Finegan, State Superintendent of Public Instruction for Pennsylvania, has stated in a letter to E. F. Passmore, Governor of the Third Federal Reserve District, dated October 9, 1919, "I am in favor of incorporating in a revised curriculum for the public schools the subject of Thrift," therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Thrift Section of the Educational Congress held under the direction of the Department of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania, meeting at Harrisburg, November 20, 1919, hereby endorses the approval given to the Government Savings Movement by Superintendent Finegan, and urges that in the proposed revision of the curriculum of the public schools of Pennsylvania the teaching of Thrift and the sale of Government Savings Stamps should be made compulsory and given a definite and permanent place.

Among other public spirited men and women, there were present: George A. Lloyd, Director of Savings, who presided over the session on Thrift; Dr. G. T. Zook, of State College; James Schroeder, of Lancaster; M. E. Jones, of Berks county; E. M. Moore, for the Department of Labor and Industry; Mrs. Lloyd Shaw, representative of the State Parent-Teachers Association; Dr. W. D. Lewis, of Philadelphia; Dr. John P. Garber, of Philadelphia; Dr. W. Davidson, of Pittsburgh; Dr. F. W. Robbins, of Williamsport; Dr. H. W. Work, of Lancaster; Dr. J. L. Binafrock, of Mercersburg; Dr. George Recht, of Harrisburg, and many Savings County Chairmen of the Third Federal Reserve District.

Our Military Camps Can Be Made Great Institutions for Citizenship

By SHAILER MATHEWS, Dean of Divinity School, U. of C.

Americans do not want a large standing army, nor do they want their young men trained as military conscripts. They want them trained as citizens. As citizens they must be ready to make their contribution to the industrial and spiritual development of the nation, champion the principles of democracy and defend their country in case need arises.

I believe that the government should make provision for this sort of training in citizenship. Our experience with the military camps shows that they can be made great educational institutions where the distinctions of wealth are obliterated, where men are taught to respect one another because of their real worth, learn the nature of their government and the ideals of America, lay the foundation for an actual productive vocation, and at the same time get that physical training and sense of co-operation which military training can give. I am opposed to militarism, for militarism means a development of a desire for war and an arrogant, commanding class. I favor and urge the adoption by congress of means which shall give every young man an education in citizenship more complete than the schools can give and one calculated to increase both his physical powers and his national loyalty.

Such a training in citizenship is very different from the military system of Germany. It would require only a fraction of the time for strictly military service. It would be essentially an education, rather than warlike preparation. Every year it would send back into the home thousands of young men with an understanding of their country, a sense of respect for others, and a physical development which no institution at the present time seems calculated to give.

What we need is training camps, not to make soldiers, but to make citizens who in time of peace can help develop the life and resources of the nation, and in times of national danger can become defenders of their native land.

TOWANDA TEACHER SAW VALUE OF SAVINGS 7 YEARS AGO ORGANIZED SCHOOLS INTO SAVINGS SYSTEM

Five years prior to America's entry into the world war, Professor L. J. Russell, County Superintendent of Schools and County Chairman of the Savings Division, instituted in his county schools a regular savings system, by which children were taught the elementary principles of thrift. The practical application of these lessons was put in effect by Savings departments, and the excellent results of these were clearly evidenced by the amount of checks issued through the local banks when the school movement for savings was developed by the government this summer.

Professor Russell was one of the first to turn over his already well established savings organization for the furtherance of the government plan. Per capita sales for Bradford county since the schools opened in September are now $1.70 as against $1.02 in July, showing an increase of $1.68 per capita. No better commendation for this splendid work can be offered. The picture below illustrates one of the check rooms in Mr. Russell's section, during banking hours, when students are making their deposits of savings.

Don't make it guess-work. You can eliminate the risk by our iron-clad guarantee. The money paid for Purina Chicken Chowder will be refunded if here, when fed, Purina Chicken Chowder with Purina Scratch Feed—the perfect balance for laying hens—directed, do not lay more eggs than when fed with any other ration.

Most hens get too much grain, a large part of which goes into surplus yolk, which the hen absorbs. This makes her fat and cuts down egg production. 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats and barley contains about 224 yolk, but only 154 whites. Therefore, laying hens should supply elements of both whites and yolk in equal quantities. Purina ration, one right, balanced, based on the most scientific tests. Purina Feeds contain the following:

A Supreme Sacrifice

By AMALIES E. COBB

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union)

"Dear brother Victor—it's just like him," said Mrs. Eullette as she finished reading a letter that had just arrived.

"Is he coming on, mamma," eagerly questioned her daughter, Victoria.

"Oh, how glad I shall be to see him."

There was genuine warmth and sincerity in the fresh young tones. Victoria had never seen the uncle she so cherished, but had always treasured the oft repeated tale of how when she was born the confirmed old bachelor after whom they had named her their first born, had come two thousand miles across the country to view the little mite he was so proud of.

Upon her every birthday, for eighteen years a few days before the natal occasion there arrived regularly some gift or memento. They kept pace with the maturing years. It was a silver cup, then a child's ring, then a wonderful doll, a tricycle, a talking machine, and so on until this strongly steadfast relative upon her graduation sent Victoria a watch and chain. After that for two years, every week, Victoria wrote a pleasant, loving letter and received in return a crudely fashioned epistle replete with tenderness and love.

She had last written him that she was about to marry Dudley Marsh. The Eullettes were comparatively poor people, and while Uncle Victor had been always profuse in his gifts, Mrs. Eullette had understood that her brother was scarcely even well to do. She was profoundly surprised, therefore, when she read in her brother's letter that he would be on hand by the wedding day and enclosed a draft for two thousand dollars.

"I want every cent of it spent for the wedding and for starting these young people out right in life," the epistle ran. "Dear little namesake, I feel that I must see her made happy at any cost."

Dudley Marsh demurred, when he was made aware of the munificence of the generous Uncle Victor. He and Victoria had mapped out an ideal modest start in life, he said, and besides the dear old man was doing too much for her.

"You will break brother Victor's heart if you say one word to spoil his pleasure in showing his love for Victoria," declared Mrs. Eullette, and so the matter rested and Uncle Victor arrived, rugged, bronzed, suggesting a man who had known little else than hard work.

"You see, Bertha," he observed to his sister, "this is a wonderful event in the life of a man who never had 'lick nor child, and whose thoughts just revolve round and round the baby grown to a woman that was named after him," and to the last Uncle Victor smiled, chuckled, laughed, played the extravagant spendthrift to perfection, and as he left on the train for home and Victoria threw her arms about his neck and kissed him, the old man whispered rapturously to himself:

"It was worth it!"

Then the smile faded. His brow furrowed thoughtfully and all the long overland journey Uncle Victor sat grave faced and reflective as though turning over and over in his mind some serious problem. For twenty years he had conducted a restaurant in a little mining town. Making the supreme sacrifice of his life, he had followed an impulse he could not control when he learned of the approaching wedding. As a matter of fact, he had cut away the only provision for his old age to give to Victoria comfort and happiness. Now, back home again, he found himself without a dollar in the world and started to work in one of the big mines of the district.

He received a few letters from Victoria bubbling over with the joys of a newly made bride, and these he treasured, for she did not write again after a year. Then suddenly he resigned himself to the arduous labor he had undertaken. One day there was a bad accident in this mine. A giant in strength, fearless, self-sacrificing, he fought his way to the surface four times, and each time carrying back to life an overcome miner, the last rescued one being the son of the wealthy owner of the mine.

For a month tenderly cared for at a hospital, a hero to all, the old man fought death and came off the victor, though a cripple for life. It was morning when his full senses had returned for the first time. Fearfully he lay on his cot, gazing out at the green-cold hills in the distance when a flitting form crossed the room.

"Uncle dear Uncle Victor!" cried Victoria Marsh, and she was kneeling at his side, her loving arms enfolding him. "Oh, you hero! and oh! you wicked, wicked—to give up all you had for my happiness! But it is all right now, for Dudley has come into a great fortune, and he made me hurry to your side the moment we learned of all that had happened."

"I'm all right," declared Uncle Victor stanchly, "the mining boys have arranged to furnish me crutches and a house."

"Have they?" flared forth Victoria excitedly. "Well, they'll be disappointed!" Right straight you are coming East with me, or Dudley will be out here with a posse to kidnap you. And," continued Victoria in a whisper, "there's a little child waiting for you, our first born, and we have named him after you—Victor!"

Two thirds of the real estate in New Orleans is said to be owned by women.

Torch of One's Own.

As Plutarch tells us: "It is well to go for a light to another man's fire, but not to carry it by it, instead of lighting a torch of one's own." A torch of one's own! That is a possible thing worth having, whether it be a flaming beacon on the hilltop or a tiny isper in the window. We cannot tell how far a little candle throws its beams, nor who is laying his course by its flickering light. The most that we can do—and it is also the least that we should do—is to tend the flame carefully and to keep it steady.—Branter Matthews.

Greeks Prize Rugs.

Rug making is as old as Greece itself, but it was never made a commercial item, and it was rare indeed that a weaver could be persuaded to part with his rug. Greek rugs are of two kinds, the heavy ones used in winter and the light ones used at all times. In the beginning the designs were of the simplest, but later the Greeks borrowed floral designs from the Persians, which loan was amply repaid with the development of Greek art. Venetian rugs are also very rare.

C. From Bark of Tree.

The famous "tape" cloth of Polynesia is made from the inner bark of the paper mulberry. When of the finest quality it is bleached to snowy whiteness and fine as muslin. In tropical Africa the inner bark of a logarithmic tree is utilized in the same way. Indeed, it is surprising to learn how widely tree barks are employed as material for clothing the world over. And in the West Indies grows the "lace-bark tree," which yields a delicate tissue so like lace that many articles of feminine adornment are made from it.

Trees of Sorrow.

The Persian "Trees of Sorrow" are so called because they bloom only at night. When the first star appears in the sky the first flower opens and as the evening advances more and more buds burst into bloom until the lovely tree appears to be one vast flower. It has a delicate fragrance not unlike the scent of the evening primrose. As the dawn approaches the flowers begin to fade until by sunrise not a bloom is to be seen.
